

Client-Server Architecture

Client-server architecture is a computing model that separates client from the server.

Working

- 1) Client sends the request to server in the form of url.
- 2) Server receives the request & perform necessary actions to fulfill the client's needs.
- 3) After that, server sends response back to client.
- 4) Client gets the necessary information through the server.